Introduction

This user guide will tell you how to use the program MP3Conversion to convert your videos from the internet (FLV or MP4 or AVI) into an mp3 audio file to listen on your mp3 player.
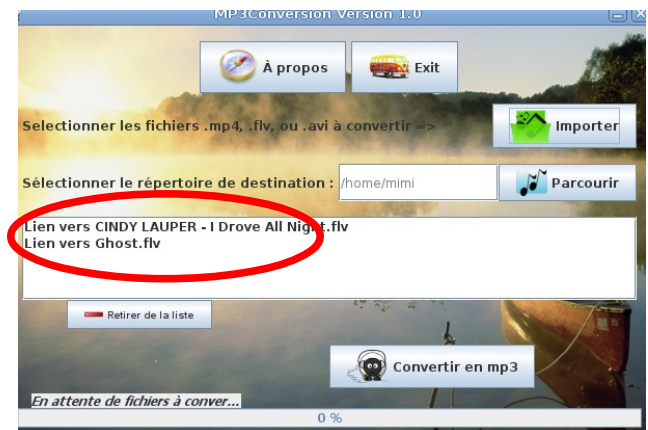

Import videos

Click on "import" and then select the videos you want. You can select more than one at a row by maintaining "shift" or "control" while clicking.

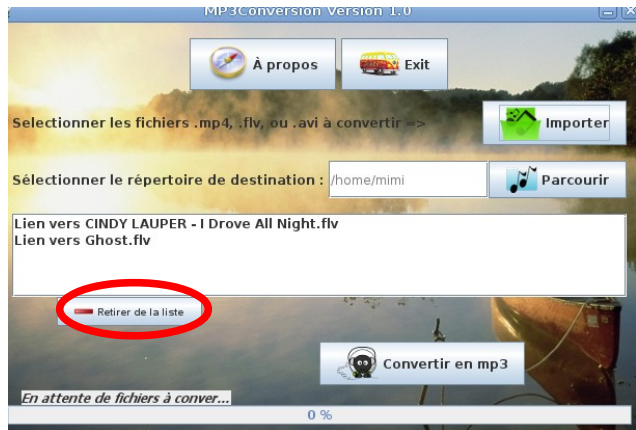

You get a confirmation message that everything went well.

And the selected files are queued and shown in the central list.

If you want to remove a video that already lays in the list, just click on "remove from list"

Set the output folder

You can decide where the mp3 have to be laid. By default it is your own folder ("Documents and settings" on Windows, "home folder" on Linux …).
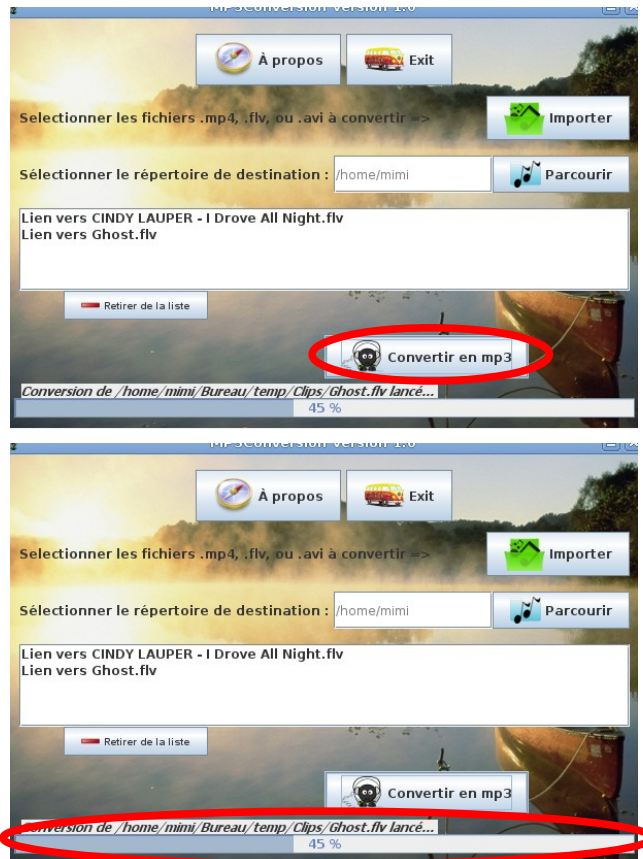

Click on browse to select the folder where the mp3 should be output.

Launch the batch conversion

Click on "Convert in mp3" to launch the batch conversion of all files that appear in the list above.

A progress bar gives you an idea of the time the program will need to convert the videos into mp3s.

Enjoy your listening!
